itelligence Offers "Quick-Check": IT Process Consultancy via the Internet

Bielefeld, February 27, 2007 – Fast, compact and professional: these are the hallmarks of the new advance IT process consultancy that itelligence is offering at CeBIT 2007 as one of the leading full IT service providers in the SAP environment. To transform the many meetings of its CeBIT visitors into an optimum consultancy and information session, the renowned SAP consultants are breaking new ground: virtual advance IT process consultancy via the Internet.

With the "Quick-Check" IT process consultancy service, CeBIT visitors can clearly define their meeting interest by means of a questionnaire on the homepage at www.itelligence.de/cebit and receive an in-depth brief analysis of their process orientation or system landscape. Answers to 15 questions lead to a computer-assisted preliminary analysis, which can be taken up and intensified in the trade fair meeting.

Two questionnaires form the gateway into this new, virtual form of consultancy. The users choose their consultancy topics in advance: it.probit benchmark for process orientation for process consultancy or it.probit benchmark software landscape development level for software landscape consultancy, each with 15 specific questions. The SAP consultants keep hardcopies of the graphically prepared analyses at the CeBIT trade fair stand in Hall 4, D 38. The advantage: right from the outset, consultancy or information meetings are much more structured and efficient. With this offer, itelligence is confirming its pioneering role in modern IT consultancy in the SAP environment.

Dr. Ralf Kampker, process consultancy program manager at itelligence, says: "Operational excellence is only possible through knowledge about internal process flows and their correct software-based support. Two sets of 15 questions help to provide a fair self-assessment on the way to operational excellence. Experts see an outstanding cost/benefit ratio here."
