SAP consulting company itelligence appoints new General Manager from its own ranks

Regensdorf/Bielefeld, June 30, 2006 – Claude Flükiger is to assume management of itelligence AG Switzerland on July 1, 2006. Claude Flükiger, who holds an engineering degree (Dipl. El. Ing. FH), has been with itelligence since 1999 and was responsible for major customers and the fast-growing SAP NetWeaver business unit for itelligence in Switzerland as Key Account Manager to date. He takes over the position from Armin Frei, who assumes presidency of the Administration Board of the Swiss itelligence company.

According to Herbert Vogel, CEO of itelligence, “With Claude Flükiger, an experienced manager from our own ranks is assuming the task of further developing one of itelligence's most successful subsidiaries. I am pleased that we have been able to fill this position so competently from within our own ranks. His predecessor, Armin Frei, not only successfully set up this company and managed it for 10 years, but also transformed it into one of the best full-service IT providers for SAP in Switzerland by striving for the highest quality. In 2005, itelligence AG Switzerland received the highest number of points in SAP's customer satisfaction analysis. The transition is well prepared and we will increase our activities further still in Switzerland – one of the most attractive consulting markets in the heart of Europe.”

Commenting on the subject, Claude Flükiger added that “We will systematically pursue our successful strategy of focusing on the public services & services industry, the engineering industry and real estate as well as the cross-industry topics of business intelligence, customer & supplier relationship management; application integration; portal, web document & technology services. Our clear objective is to further strengthen our leading position in terms of customer satisfaction in line with above-average growth working in close partnership with SAP. For this reason, we intend to further expand our workforce.”
